NURSING FACULTY OPPORTUNITY
Nurse Anesthesia Faculty Member

The Duke University School of Nursing invites applications for a faculty position in the Nurse Anesthesia Program. The faculty member is responsible for participating in a dynamic faculty role that includes supporting didactic instruction in on-campus and online environments, assisting in the management of clinical sites, and engaging clinical partners in the development of DNP capstone project partnerships. The faculty member will also serve as a DNP capstone chair and/or committee member, participate in the student admissions process, and be responsible for supporting the evaluation of students in simulated clinical experiences. This is a full time, twelve-month position. Faculty appointment for this position will be made at the Assistant, Associate or Professor level to a non-tenure earning position in accordance with the candidate’s experience.

Qualified candidates will possess a doctoral degree, be at least 5 years beyond initial certification in nurse anesthesia, currently active in clinical practice as a CRNA, and have graduate level teaching experience; they will be eligible for licensure as an RN in North Carolina. The well qualified candidate will possess a record of scholarship and demonstrate a commitment to service to the profession.

In 2017, US News and World Reports ranked Duke University School of Nursing #3 of all nursing schools and the nurse anesthesia specialty # 3 of all nurse anesthesia programs. The nurse anesthesia program is nationally recognized for excellence and is accredited by the Council on Accreditation of Nurse Anesthesia Educational Programs. The 36-month program currently admits 25 students annually with a total enrollment of up to 75 full time students, whose degree objective is the Doctor of Nursing Practice Degree. Our graduates consistently surpass the national average on the National Certification Exam.

Candidate screening is underway and applications are to be submitted by April 1, 2017. A target hire date is July 1, 2017. Individuals interested in joining an outstanding group of nursing professionals in an interdisciplinary environment conducive to teaching and practice should email a letter detailing their interest in and qualifications for this opportunity and addressing specific areas of research and scholarship, teaching experiences, service and commitment to diversity, a CV, and the names and contact information for three references to: Director, Faculty Affairs, Duke University School of Nursing, DUMC 3322, Durham, NC 27710, to sonfacul@dm.duke.edu.

Individuals from under-represented groups are encouraged to apply.

Duke University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer committed to providing employment opportunity without regard to an individual’s age, color, disability, genetic information, gender, gender identity, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status.