SIGNIFICANCE OF THE ACADEMIC DRESS

Academic dress had its origin in the Middle Ages. When the European universities were taking form in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, scholars were also clerics, and they adopted robes similar to those of their monastic orders. Caps were a necessity in drafty buildings, and capes or capes with hoods attached were needed for warmth. As the control of universities gradually passed from the church, academic costume began to take on brighter hues and to employ varied patterns in cut and color of gown and type of headdress.

The use of academic costume in the United States has been continuous since Colonial times, but a clear protocol did not emerge until an intercollegiate commission in 1893 recommended a uniform code. In this country, the design of a gown varies with the degree held. The bachelor's gown is relatively simple with long pointed sleeves as its distinguishing mark. The gown for the master's degree has an oblong sleeve with the rear part cut square and the front part with a cutaway arc. The most elaborate academic costume is the doctoral gown with velvet panels down the front and three bars of the same material across the sleeves. The velvet is usually black, but it may be a color designating the field of study to which the degree pertains. The gown itself, usually black like those of the lower degrees, may be of a color distinctive of a particular university.

The hood bears a still larger symbolic burden: the width of its velvet trimming designates the level of the degree; the color heralds the major field of study (Nursing: apricot); and the lining identifies the institution that granted the degree. Duke University is symbolized by a lining of Duke blue with a white chevron.

The cap, originally round, is usually a square mortarboard and is the same for all degrees. The standard tassel for the cap is black, but the cap worn with the doctoral robe may have a gold tassel.

CORDS & STOLES

Sigma Theta Tau

Orchid is the official color of Sigma Theta Tau National Honor Society in Nursing. The purple honor cord is worn as part of the regalia by graduating students and faculty members to identify them as members of the Sigma Theta Tau Honor Society of Nursing.

HEA Scholars

The stole represents status as a Health Equity Academy Scholar. The Health Equity Academy is a competitive academic and professional socialization program for students who are interested in a career in nursing and aspire to leadership in the profession and advanced levels of graduate education.

National Student Nurses Association

NSNA Cords (blue, gold, and white) are worn by those who held positions on the National Student Nurses' Associate Executive Council. National Student Nurses' Association (NSNA) mentors the professional development of future nurses by providing leadership opportunities, professional resources, and career guidance. These Executive Council members created educational events for other NSNA members and students, as well as encouraging participation in research and other scholarly and professional events.
