

MyResearchEditor

Because your manuscripts require science, substance, and style.

How to Get the Most out of Your Scientific Writing Appointments

Whether you're writing a literature review, an article critique, a research proposal, or your final DNP manuscript, Sara Hauber, M.A., is available to help make the writing, revising, and editing of your papers easier and less daunting.

To help you gain the most value from your scientific writing appointments, Sara has compiled this helpful list of tips:

Tip #1: Don't wait until the week before your paper is due to request an appointment! The earlier you get help, the better your paper will be.

Tip #2: Do watch and apply the tips from Sara's instructional videos BEFORE you submit your paper for review. The videos are here.

Tip #3: Do provide Sara the most up-to-date version of your paper on or before your appointment time.

Tip #4: Do detail a list of your specific questions and concerns when you submit your paper for review. The more specific, the better!

Tip #5: Don't expect Sara to edit your paper for you. This service is designed to help you learn to write better and then edit your own papers using what Sara teaches you.

Tip #6: If you have a follow-up call scheduled, Do create your free Skype account and request to add sdhauber as a contact at least 24 hours prior to your appointment, or plan to contact Sara at 919-913-8067.

Now that you're fully prepared to make the most of your appointments, log on and get started!

1. Go to www.MyResearchEditor.com
2. Click the Duke University tab.
3. Enter the password editorial when prompted.
4. Read the complete Student Agreement and follow the prompts to request your appointment.