

PhD Program in Nursing

Preparing nurse scholars who will build nursing science by leading interdisciplinary research initiatives targeting the interface between chronic illness and care systems.

The destination for outstanding talent

The PhD Program in Nursing provides:

- Broad perspective on philosophy of science and its application to solving challenging health problems facing our nation.
 - Experience with common and emerging research design and methods.
 - Rigorous training in statistics.
 - Mentored research and teaching experiences to reinforce knowledge acquisition and skill development.
-

Priority Deadlines

Fall Term: December 1

nursing.duke.edu